President Reagan's meeting with Prime Minister Nakasone in two weeks presents the ideal opportunity. This was to be a temporary restraint - a tax, really, on American consumers - to give America's automakers time and capital to adjust to new market conditions. They've had four years. From here on, protection will only make them inefficient again.	False		1984-12-21	TX 1-494580

The overwhelming response of scientists and defense experts, after 18 months of reflection, is that it can't be done. But Mr. Reagan won't take no for an answer.	False		1984-12-31	TX 1-497563

It is a magnificent and large institution, worthy of a borough that was once one of the nation's largest cities and that now offers some of the best views of New York in a small but significant show: 25 photographs tucked away among many other bigger ones that can lay claim to attention. A city rolled by and Danny was struck initially by how many aerals there were - hundreds and hundreds really, prodding the sky any which way - then by a subtler apprehension of the whole electrical network, the telephone poles and power lines, the huge humming ugly infra-system that usually dissolves from one's sight, and finally by a freshened perception of the ugliness of this whole Japanese countryside. There, right before his eyes, a steam shovel was tucking into another hillside. "It's like New Jersey, south of Manhattan," Greg had prophesied of this terrain west of Kobe. But I merely meant to report on what preoccupied me, which is the only way I can write letters, and I sincerely yearn for the day when our friendship is so pure that all my royalties can be assigned to some charitable cause such as a society for making it clear to the American people that (General) MacArthur is an unspeakable ham. I have decided not to be a bank clerk, after all, since I would probably be paralyzed by the conflict between my desire to steal money and my fear of doing so. It was pleasant to learn that you expected our correspondence to be read in the international salons and boudoirs of the future. Do you think they will be able to distinguish between the obfuscations, mystifications, efforts at humor, and plain statements of facts? Will they recognize my prime feelings as a correspondent - the catacomb from which I write to you, seeking to secure some word from the real world, or at least news of the Far West - and sigh with compassion? Or will they just think that I am nasty, an over-eager clown, gauche, awkward and bookish? Will they understand that I am always direct, open, friendly, simple and candid to the point of naïveté until the ways of the fiendish world infuriate me and I am forced to be devious, suspicious, calculating not that it does me any good anyway? And for that matter what will they make of your complex character? . . . Yours, Delmore New York City May 8, 1951 -	False		1985-01-04	TX 1-491871

If the United States is to strengthen its power . . . it must be prepared to play . . . through trade, aid, foreign investment, exchange of technology, measures to strengthen and stabilize the international monetary system - and its own economy. At the end of World War II, it was recognized that for the United States to achieve its international goals of rebuilding the world economy and preserving a secure structure of peace, high employment and economic growth would have to be maintained at home - to create the needed conditions for America's world role, to provide the resources needed by others, and to maintain an open and growing market for the goods of other countries. The world economic and financial crisis today requires a comparable effort on the part of the United States to keep its economy operating at a high level of employment, while curbing the inflation and high interest rates that have worsened the problems of others. International inflation stems from national sources, and the United States has been as great a culprit as any nation in breeding these evils. What is needed is the political courage, in the broad public interest, to curb the special-interest pressures that unbalance the budget, distort and waste national resources, including the arms race but by no means limited to the arms race. A few years prior to my arrival in Hollywood, I had been quoted as saying that all actors are cattle. I'm not sure in what context I might have made that statement. It may have been made in the early days of talkies in England, when we used actors who were simultaneously performing in stage plays. When they had a matinee, they'd leave the set, I felt, much too early for a matinee, and I suspected they were allowing themselves plenty of time for a very leisurely lunch. And this meant we had to shoot our scenes at breakneck speed so that the actors could get out on time. I couldn't help feeling that if they'd been really conscientious, they'd have swallowed their sandwich in the cab, on the way to the theater. . . . Another reason for resentment is that I'd sometimes hear two actresses talking in a restaurant. One would say to the other, "What are you doing now, dear?" and the other one would say, "Oh, I'm filming," in the same tone of voice as if she were saying "Oh, I'm slumming." And this raises a grievance I have against those people who come into our industry by way of the theater or as writers and who work in our medium for the money only. I think the worst culprits are the writers, particularly those who are here in Hollywood. . . . Some playwrights sign three-month contracts just in order to spend their winters in California. By the way, how did we get on this subject? -	False		1985-01-04	TX 1-491871

The coins, like the Games, were a roaring success, netting $65 million to help develop young Americans for future Games. Now let's hope the Games don't go the way of the dies. That gloomy thought derives from the disappointing results of the International Olympic Committee's recent meeting on anti-boycott strategy. Three consecutive boycotts, led by black Africans in 1976, America in 1980 and Russia this year, have diluted three consecutive Olympics. The I.O.C. confirmed its feeble reputation by deciding to do virtually nothing. Boycott possibilities remain serious. The I.O.C. chairman, Juan Antonio Samaranch, has reported receiving veiled threats that Russia, Poland and Cuba might boycott the 1988 games in South Korea.	False		1985-01-04	TX 1-491871

She pressed it to her, kissed it, fell to her knees again, and begged for help. Scarcely breathing, she listened at the door, the chain still in her hand. Men's slow, heavy steps, a maid's voice: "Down this hall and then left to the open door." A muffled sound; they had set the stretcher down. Whispered words now; they were carrying him to his bed. From him, nothing. The heavy steps again in the hall. The maid's voice: "I'll get Mrs. Allison." Alice pressed the chain to her lips, stuck it back in its place, and opened the door. "Mrs. Allison," the maid called. In the peaceful house Edward lay in his old room on the ground floor. A door opened onto the garden. He could see the rose bushes, the yellow, red, and white roses, the wilted ones, the tulip bed, the carnations, the constantly changing sky, and, beyond, hills with chestnut trees. Complete peace. Here a man could become well again. He put up with things for a few days. His mother was overjoyed to have him home. She sat at his bedside for hours at a time and held his hand. He remained reticent and often sent her away (he had a nurse) - didn't she have anything to attend to in the house? "Let me be, Edward. Believe me, I have nothing to do. Allow me this pleasure." -	False		1985-01-04	TX 1-491871

Change and reform have gone so far that the Chinese Writers' Association now demands the once-unthinkable: real artistic freedom. In the moving words of the group's 80-year-old chairman, Ba Jin: "We yearn for China's Dante, Shakespeare, Goethe and Tolstoy to appear." More remarkably, Mr. Ba's sentiments were seconded by a Communist leader who assured writers that "literary creation must be free."	False		1985-01-08	TX 1-497604

Is Bernhard Goetz a hero for allegedly shooting four teen-agers he thought were about to mug him on a subway train? Or is he a trigger-happy vigilante? The questions, reverberating in New York and beyond, serve mostly to confuse the issue. The choice is not between taking the law into one's own hands or no law at all. In fact, much can feasibly be done about subway crime. The Goetz case makes clear the need to do it.	False		1985-01-08	TX 1-497604

America and Russia are miles from the latter, but inches from the former. So when they finally meet tomorrow in Geneva, it will be a success if they agree only to meet tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow. If they can achieve even that much, Secretary Shultz and Foreign Minister Gromyko will have earned their fare, and the thanks of a worried world.	False		1985-01-09	TX 1-496587

The findings are not, in any scientific sense, surprising. Claims of miraculous cures for baldness probably date back as far as baldness. And aphrodisiacs, like the legendary Spanish fly, probably have never worked any place outside the imaginations of fevered schoolboys. The F.D.A. report is unsettling nonetheless, because of its lack of science. The agency implies that, apart from a still-experimental drug made from male hormones, there are no aphrodisiacs at all, not liquor and not even perfume. It sounds as though the F.D.A. is getting too caught up in the rigor of its own research.	False		1985-01-22	TX 1-501879

So every Administration struggles for ways to reduce the seepage of militarily valuable technology from West to East without crippling trade. Mr. Reagan's has insisted it will stanch what it regards as a hemorrhage, yet has little to show for four years of effort. Wrangles between the Commerce and Defense Departments were only recently resolved and Congress remains confused about how to tighten export controls. That creates a problem for the Justice Department, which almost reflexively resists high fee awards. It has asked the court for more time to give its views. If the department wants to advance the aims of the Ethics in Government Act, it won't oppose a generous award.	False		1985-01-28	TX 1-510113

That's a mixed blessing, at best. It's good news for bargain-hunting Americans in London and Paris and for any American who buys foreign goods. It's a major factor in holding down inflation because American products must remain competitive. But there's a high cost for these benefits.	False		1985-01-29	TX 1-507417
